DropSmart Terms & Conditions

Prototype Placeholder Document

This document is a placeholder created for the DropSmart website prototype. It shows where terms and conditions information would appear in a completed service. It is not a real legal agreement, live contract, or official water provider document.

Prototype notice

DropSmart is presented as a static prototype for planning and learning purposes. The website may describe possible setup, support, access, booking, pricing, and data flows, but it does not process live bookings, payments, accounts, installations, or legal agreements.

Key placeholder terms

1

Using the prototype website

Users may browse information about DropSmart, installation preparation, support topics, renter access, pricing factors, and data/privacy guidance. Prototype content should be treated as general guidance only.

2

Installation and consultation requests

Any request, checkout, or booking flow shown in the prototype is illustrative. In a real service, installation suitability, property access, meter type, provider support, and approval requirements would need to be confirmed before proceeding.

3

Pricing and cancellation

Pricing is not fixed in this prototype. Costs would be confirmed during a consultation phase after the user situation, water provider requirements, and property setup are reviewed. Users should be able to cancel before confirming installation or service setup.

4

Account and property access

Access may depend on whether the user is a homeowner, renter, landlord, property manager, strata representative, or account holder. Landlords or property managers may invite renters through a provider portal in a completed version.

Renter and property permissions

Renters should not arrange installation or account access without approval from the relevant landlord, property manager, strata manager, body corporate, or water provider.

Provider and installer requirements

A real DropSmart service may depend on approved installers, water provider rules, local availability, building access, and installation safety requirements.

PLACEHOLDER CONDITIONS

Additional placeholder conditions

These points show the kinds of terms a completed DropSmart service may need to cover.

Service availability

DropSmart availability may vary by region, water provider, property type, meter type, installation access, building complexity, and account eligibility. A completed service would confirm availability before any user commits to installation or ongoing service access.

User responsibilities

Users would be responsible for providing accurate contact details, property information, account details, access permissions, and relevant approvals. Users should not provide access to a property, meter, portal, or account unless they are authorised to do so.

Payments, rebates, and subsidies

Any pricing, rebate, subsidy, promotion, or support program mentioned in the prototype is illustrative. In a completed service, final pricing and eligibility would need to be confirmed by the provider, installer, council, government program, or relevant authority.

Changes to access

Account holders such as landlords or property managers may need to update or remove renter access when tenancy details change. Users should avoid sharing access with people who are no longer connected to the property or account.

No emergency service

DropSmart support information is not intended for emergency plumbing, burst pipes, flooding, safety hazards, or urgent water supply issues. In an emergency, users should contact their water provider, emergency services, or a licensed professional.

Data and privacy

Water-use data, property details, contact details, support requests, and account access would need to be managed under an official privacy policy in a real service.

Limitations of information

DropSmart support content does not replace advice from a licensed plumber, water authority, insurer, landlord, property manager, or legal professional.

Final placeholder statement

This Terms & Conditions PDF is for website prototype evidence only. A real service would require official terms prepared and reviewed by the relevant service provider, water provider, legal team, or organisation responsible for DropSmart.
